

Holding onto Hope

Come and support
Ovacome at its
Holding onto Hope
photographic exhibition

1 & 3 March 2012 at London's Menier Gallery (Lower Gallery)
51 Southwark Street, SE1 Admission free
Opening times: Thursday 1 March: 1pm-6pm, Saturday 3 March: 11am-4pm

Holding onto Hope

The Menier Gallery's Holding onto Hope exhibition is the work of award-winning photographer Andy Scaysbrook for the ovarian cancer charity Ovacome.

The exhibition features celebrities holding a picture of a person close to them who has been directly affected by ovarian cancer.

Featured celebrities include Jenny Agutter, pictured with Ovacome's chief executive Louise Bayne, with her daughter Eleanor, along with Tara Palmer-Tomkinson, James May and Nigel Havers.

Ovacome hopes the exhibition will raise awareness of the disease and help promote its BEAT campaign designed to highlight warning signs of ovarian cancer.

These are:

B is for bloating that does not come and go
E is for eating less and feeling fuller quicker
A is for abdominal pain
T is for telling your GP

Prints can also be ordered for as little as £1 from www.ovacome.org.uk

paintings in hospitals

 Printed by Information Press Ltd.
www.informationpress.com